Thank You To Viet Nam Era Vets

By Dr. R. Pletsch

The American troop involvement in the Southeast Asian Theater ran from 1957 to 1973. During this time, over 58,000 American servicemen and women died and have their names inscribed on "The Wall". This place is a must see for the young because this 16 year conflict has been reduced in many textbooks to a couple of paragraphs calling it, in some cases, "an unnecessary misunderstood war" that brought conflict and demonstrations in the US. Students and our country deserve more. Kids do not understand the draft or the cold war.

The draft was part of our history and so were demonstrations against it. There were violent riots in New York during the Civil War. Yet despite its news coverage, two-thirds of those serving in Nam were volunteers. It meant that most of these volunteers gave the country at least three years, when if they waited to be drafted, it was only two years of their life. As for the cold war, it is hard to remember since our young students have no idea what the Iron Curtain was and it came down thanks to St. John Paul II and President Reagan almost thirty years ago.

I have a Vietnamese American friend and asked if a form of The Wall would help the people in Viet Nam. He told me they couldn't make it big enough. Over 36,000 teachers and officials were assassinated. Over 58,000 were kidnapped. Either forced into the NVA or they, too, were assassinated. There were well over a million combat casualties. When the North was victorious in 1975, they immediately began killing priests, nuns, doctors, nurses, veterans, and other educated people. Many of these numbers have been confirmed since after the fall of the Soviet Union many KGB records were released. These records, while unconfirmed, adds to the credence that they actually held POWs and supported many peace marchers in the US. It also claims that the Soviets had to convince the North not to sue for peace after the bombing of Hanoi telling them to look at the streets of the US.

The Soviets apparently funneled much money in to the peace movement which makes sense, you would constantly see the same marchers all over the country. I was in college and I couldn't even afford to take a vacation, but these protestors were flying from place to place. How many more families could have been spared if the war was three years shorter?

There are more books than you can count on the subject and countless doctoral dissertations. You might not agree with all of them, but we cannot deny the official stats that most Viet Vets served honorably and with distinction. They came home to be productive Americans. Now the vast majority are at least 65 years old. Most of us had families or friends that served and many that were injured or died. Many saw combat, others worked with jet engines or typewriters. But all filled the roll and gave years of their lives to our country. Please remember this on Sunday, March 29th, as we celebrate Viet Nam Veterans Day.

Shedd Penguins Enjoy Field Trips

By Johnny Ford

The penguins at Shedd Aquarium are still on the move, as they explore the various exhibits and visit other animals while the aquarium is closed to the public through April 2nd. Both species of penguins – Magellanic and Rockhopper – get a chance to go out on these enriching field trips, which encourage physical exercise and discovery. The penguins truly seem to take interest in all the sights and sounds.

This time, Bosco the Rockhopper and two Magellanic penguins – Iris and young chick Calista – went to Shedd's special exhibit, Underwater Beauty, to see unique animals from across the world. Bosco spent plenty of time taking in the bold patterns of several fish like the anthias and angelfish. Iris on the other hand spent time with the spotted jellies, watching them pulse and sway.

As for Wellington, his popular exploits also continued, as he and some other penguins went down to the Wild Reef exhibit. The birds explored the exhibit's largest habitat, which is home to six species of sharks including zebra sharks and blacktip reef sharks.

Shedd encourages the public to keep up with the aquarium's Facebook, Twitter and Instagram pages. These will serve as a real-time window into the animal care and welfare provided to the animals.

To help mitigate the financial impacts on the organization, you can help support its mission through various ways, including adopting an aquatic animal, making a donation, or becoming a member. The public can also show support by donating the value of previously-purchased tickets for a visit, group and experience reservations, programs and events and more.

Preckwinkle Explains Release of Detainees

Across Cook County, people are uniting to care for seniors and delivering groceries and medical supplies to friends and neighbors. This public health crisis has impacted all of us.

The people who are detained in the Cook County Jail and the Cook County Juvenile Temporary Detention Center are not exempt from this impact either, and we must do what we can to protect this vulnerable population just like we have united to protect our elders and those with preexisting conditions.

Regardless of the current public health pandemic, many of the people currently detained will all be released from jail due to their pretrial status or short sentences. The only question is when: before or after they are infected with COVID-19? There are still 150 children at the JTDC awaiting trial and they all need to have access to consideration for release. Doing so is in the best interest of the whole of Cook County—every person we can spare from infection and hospitalization at this time helps our collective health system and thus the entire community.

I applaud Public Defender Amy Campanelli for her leadership in motioning the court to expedite the release of categories of pre-trial defendants who do not present a public safety risk and who themselves are at higher risk of being infected by COVID-19. The jails are not equipped to adhere to CDC recommendations that mitigate the spread of the virus. In many cases, detainees are having meals in close proximity, using the same facilities to shower without deep cleaning between use, and not provided with soap or the ability to wash their hands as frequently as needed to contain the virus.

All of the criminal justice stakeholders agree that those who pose a serious risk to public safety must remain detained and denied bond. But we must release those people who will be released soon anyway and avoid the threat this poses to detainees, correctional officers, attorneys, healthcare workers and other staff in the jail, and ultimately to every family in Cook County.

Relief Package For City Small Business

Mayor Lori E. Lightfoot announced a new $100 million economic relief package to support small businesses that are experiencing a temporary loss of revenue as a result of the COVID-19 outbreak. The new Chicago Small Business Resiliency Loan Fund will provide low-interest loans to small businesses over the coming months, targeting under-resourced communities.

The economic relief package is designed to provide cash flow relief for neighborhood entrepreneurs and includes extended due dates for business-related tax payments until April 30th.

The fund leverages a $25 million grant by the City of Chicago, $50 million in capital by the Chicago Community Catalyst Fund as well as $10 million from Goldman Sachs' Urban Investment Group, $1 million from Fifth Third, $250,000 from Clayco and $15 million from additional private funding sources.

Up to $50,000 in working capital loans to neighborhood entrepreneurs will help support rent and payroll expenses. A network of Community Development Financial Institutions will be responsible for providing support with application screening, credit underwriting, loan disbursements and servicing.

Eligible businesses must have experienced a more than 25% revenue decrease due to the impact from COVID-19. Furthermore, to qualify as a small business, each establishment must have fewer than 50 employees. Beginning on March 31st, the City's CDFI partners will begin accepting loan applications from local businesses. In the meantime, business owners and entrepreneurs are encouraged to fill out an interest form and a City representative of the fund will reach out on next steps.

The City is temporarily suspending debt collection, and limited ticketing and towing practices. New economic relief package will temporarily defer all business fine collections as well as license renewal and late fees until April 30th.

Due dates for payments will be extended until April 30th for the following City taxes: bottled water, checkout bag, amusement, hotel accommodation, restaurant and parking.

COVID 19 CORONAVIRUS DISEASE

What you need to know about coronavirus disease 2019 (COVID-19)

What is coronavirus disease 2019 (COVID-19)?

Coronavirus disease 2019 (COVID-19) is a respiratory illness that can spread from person to person. The virus that causes COVID-19 is a novel coronavirus that was first identified during an investigation into an outbreak in Wuhan, China.

Can people in the U.S. get COVID-19?

Yes. COVID-19 is spreading from person to person in parts of the United States. Risk of infection with COVID-19 is higher for people who are close contacts of someone known to have COVID-19, for example healthcare workers, or household members. Other people at higher risk for infection are those who live in or have recently been in an area with ongoing spread of COVID-19. Learn more about places with ongoing spread at https://www.cdc.gov/coronavirus/2019-ncov/about/transmission.html#geographic.

Have there been cases of COVID-19 in the U.S.?

Yes. The first case of COVID-19 in the United States was reported on January 21, 2020. The current count of cases of COVID-19 in the United States is available on CDC's webpage at https://www.cdc.gov/coronavirus/2019-ncov/cases-in-us.html.

How does COVID-19 spread?

The virus that causes COVID-19 probably emerged from an animal source, but is now spreading from person to person. The virus is thought to spread mainly between people who are in close contact with one another (within about 6 feet) through respiratory droplets produced when an infected person coughs or sneezes. It also may be possible that a person can get COVID-19 by touching a surface or object that has the virus on it and then touching their own mouth, nose, or possibly their eyes, but this is not thought to be the main way the virus spreads. Learn what is known about the spread of newly emerged coronaviruses at https://www.cdc.gov/coronavirus/2019-ncov/about/transmission.html.

What are the symptoms of COVID-19?

Patients with COVID-19 have had mild to severe respiratory illness with symptoms of
- fever
- cough
- shortness of breath

What are severe complications from this virus?

Some patients have pneumonia in both lungs, multi-organ failure and in some cases death.

How can I help protect myself?

People can help protect themselves from respiratory illness with everyday preventive actions.
- Avoid close contact with people who are sick.
- Avoid touching your eyes, nose, and mouth with unwashed hands.
- Wash your hands often with soap and water for at least 20 seconds. Use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer that contains at least 60% alcohol if soap and water are not available.

If you are sick, to keep from spreading respiratory illness to others, you should
- Stay home when you are sick.
- Cover your cough or sneeze with a tissue, then throw the tissue in the trash.
- Clean and disinfect frequently touched objects and surfaces.

What should I do if I recently traveled from an area with ongoing spread of COVID-19?

If you have traveled from an affected area, there may be restrictions on your movements for up to 2 weeks. If you develop symptoms during that period (fever, cough, trouble breathing), seek medical advice. Call the office of your health care provider before you go, and tell them about your travel and your symptoms. They will give you instructions on how to get care without exposing other people to your illness. While sick, avoid contact with people, don't go out and delay any travel to reduce the possibility of spreading illness to others.

Is there a vaccine?

There is currently no vaccine to protect against COVID-19. The best way to prevent infection is to take everyday preventive actions, like avoiding close contact with people who are sick and washing your hands often.

Is there a treatment?

There is no specific antiviral treatment for COVID-19. People with COVID-19 can seek medical care to help relieve symptoms.

Next Phase Of Byrne Interchange

The Illinois Department of Transportation announced that the next major phase of the Jane Byrne Interchange project will begin with the closure of the Jackson Boulevard bridge over the Kennedy Expressway (Interstate 90/94).

To remove the existing bridge over the expressway, Jackson Boulevard between Halsted street and Des Plaines avenue will close Friday, March 27th, to all traffic, weather permitting.

A detour will direct vehicular traffic east on Jackson boulevard, south on Halsted, east on Van Buren and north on Jefferson street to reconnect with Jackson.

Pedestrians should use the Van Buren street bridge as an alternate route. Bicyclists will be detoured south on Halsted, east on Harrison and north on Clinton street to reconnect with Jackson.

The Jackson entrance ramp to the outbound Kennedy also will close, with a detour directing traffic north on Halsted to enter the expressway via Madison street. The inbound Kennedy exit ramp to Jackson will close as well, with motorists directed to exit at Monroe and access Jackson via Des Plaines avenue.

The new bridge is expected to open in 2022 with two lanes and a dedicated bike lane and sidewalks on both sides.

Other significant impacts at the Jane Byrne this year include: The outbound Ida B. Wells Drive ramp to the outbound Kennedy was closed this winter and reopens by the end of this year.

The inbound Eisenhower Expressway (Interstate 290) ramp to the outbound Kennedy will close later this spring and reopen in late 2020. A special detour will utilize the outbound Dan Ryan Expressway (Interstate 90/94) to connect to the Kennedy via the Taylor Street interchange.

Adams street over the Kennedy will be closed this summer, the last of the 11 local street bridges at the interchange to be replaced.

Improvements will begin later in 2020 on the mainline lanes of the Kennedy and Dan Ryan through the interchange, which include the construction of new collector-distributor ramps that will relocate the left-hand entrance ramps at Jackson and Adams. Three lanes will remain open in both directions, but traffic will be shifted.

MWRD Addresses Coronavirus Threat

The Metropolitan Water Reclamation District of Greater Chicago is continuing to monitor the information it received about the Coronavirus (COVID-19). They are following the guidelines of the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and Illinois Department of Public Health and consulting with the Chicago Department of Public Health and international water professionals and utility and technology partners in the water sector.

The MWRD continues to provide water reclamation operations and storm water management services to ensure the region's wastewater is cleaned and the public health and environment are protected.

The MWRD transforms an average of 1.47 billion gallons of water each day and returns it to the environment as clean water. At any given time, unpredictable and unique situations are encountered. The risk of transmission of COVID-19 through sewerage systems is low and data from previous outbreaks shows low transmission risk in human waste, according to the Water Environment Federa-tion.

Previous studies have shown that the virus can survive in wastewater for hours and even days without disinfection, and there have been reports that indicated sewage was a cause for the spread of SARS in Hong King in 2003. However, chlorine dosing, similar to that employed at the MWRD's Calumet, Egan, Hanover Park and Kirie Water Reclamation Plants, has been said to be "sufficient to control the virus," according to WEF.

The American Water Works Association states that disinfection treatment will control waste generated from COVID-19 patients. "Current disinfection conditions in wastewater treatments facilities are expected to be sufficient. This includes conditions for practices such as oxidation with hypochlorite (i.e. chlorine bleach) and peracetic acid, as well as inactivation using UV irradiation.

According to Water Research Australia, the standard water and wastewater treatment and disinfection processes used to control pathogen transmission via water routes are expected to be effective on SARS-CoV-2.

The MWRD currently utilizes various disinfection technologies at five of its seven WRPs. Disinfection occurs after wastewater passes through a series of treatment processes including: screening, filtering, settling, and aeration to encourage bacteria and other organisms to clean the water.

Disinfection then adds another layer of treatment by deactivating the DNA of microbes, preventing them from reproducing or growing. The disinfection processes operate during the recreation session from the spring through fall.

In the 2003 SARS outbreak, there was documented transmission associated with sewage aero spots, and reports that SARS was detected in sewage for up to 14 days, according to the CDC. But studies have also shown that the virus is transmitted via cell receptors in the lungs, so unless the virus in the water is made airborne and inhaled it is not transmitted. There is still insufficient information about COVID-19, and transmissions via touching contaminated water or wastewater cannot be ruled out.

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration has expressed many of the same guidelines about handling of solid waste and wastewater that the MWRD already implements to providing oversight managing the region's wastewater during these times. The MWRD operations follow the OSHA guidelines by following routine practices to prevent exposure to wastewater, including using the engineering and administrative controls, safe work practices, and using the personal protective equipment normally required for work tasks when handling untreated wastewater.
